Lutherville African American Survey District

Baltimore County, MD

1870s-1950s

The Lutherville African American Survey District is located in the Eighth District of Baltimore County. Lutherville was a planned village developed by the ministers of the Lutheran Church. In 1868, Lutherville became the first incorporated town in Baltimore County. Edgewood United Methodist Church built their first church in 1870. The two-room schoolhouse on School Lane, 'Colored School number 24,' opened in 1909. The 1960 census records 250 African Americans residing in Lutherville. A total of fifty five households accommodated these residents. The National Register Historic District boundaries for Lutherville include the Edgewood U.M. Church and Rectory as well as the five dwellings along Railroad Avenue.

A total of forty-eight buildings are included in the survey district with five as non-contributing dating from 1870s to the 1950s. The African American housing stock exhibited in Lutherville is dominated by vernacular dwellings lacking stylistic treatments common throughout the Lutherville Historic District. Styles, however modest, and forms exhibited in the Lutherville survey district include bungalows, Gothic Revival, as well as side-gable and front-gable roof dwellings. The historic residential fabric is predominantly two-stories in height. One multiple-family dwelling stands within the district consumed by single-family houses. Each building within the survey district is constructed of wood frame. The figurative and physical monument of the African American community in Lutherville is the Edgewood Methodist Episcopal Church (BA-300). This large wood-frame church faces south and is detailed in a Gothic Revival style. Built circa 1909, the Lutherville School, School number 24, (BA-2565) on School Lane is one of the earliest African American two-room schoolhouse remaining in Baltimore County.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Lutherville African American Survey District is located within the town of Lutherville north of the Baltimore Beltway. Separated into two distinct clusters the Lutherville survey district is an entirely residential community augmented with a schoolhouse and a church. The two clusters are situated on the outskirts of the town's historic center separated by the Conrail Commuter Train and two north south streets. The northernmost boundary of each area is Seminary Avenue. A total of forty-eight buildings are included in the survey district. Only five are non-contributing due to their construction date in the last half of the 20th century.

The African American housing stock exhibited in Lutherville is dominated by vernacular dwellings lacking stylistic treatments common throughout the Lutherville Historic District. Common in other communities, a distinct stylistic separation between white and black residential neighborhoods is visible in communities such as the Bond Avenue in Reisterstown and Schwartz Avenue adjacent to the historic Stoneliagh neighborhood. Styles, however modest, and forms exhibited in the Lutherville survey district include bungalows, Gothic Revival, as well as side-gable and front-gable roof dwellings. The historic residential fabric is predominantly two-stories in height. One multiple-family dwelling stands within the district entirely consumed by single-family houses. Each building within the survey district is constructed of wood frame, a common practice in historic African American neighborhoods in Baltimore County. Within both the east and west cluster of the survey district the houses are sited close to one another and to the road. Most of the properties lack any side yards, however, many are surrounded with several trees, shrubs, foundation plantings, and few have driveways (either gravel or dirt). The properties included in the western neighborhood are situated on level grassy lots whereas the eastern neighborhood is sited on a sloping landscape producing excellent views. The roads are paved in both areas however neither have sidewalks.

The western group of African American buildings includes Railroad Avenue, School Lane, and Seminary Avenue. The eastern group of buildings within the Lutherville African American survey district includes a block along Bellona Avenue and the north side of Lincoln Avenue. Approximately 23 contributing buildings are within this neighborhood.

This residential area is augmented with a two-room school built in 1909 for the African American residents. Each of the houses along Seminary Avenue, Railroad Avenue, and School Lane are lined close together with very small side yards, if any. The east side of School Lane consists of empty lots, and the east side of Railroad Avenue is the Conrail Commuter Train. Railroad Avenue dead ends into a large commercial complex. One building on the east side of School Lane appears to have been recently demolished.

The five houses along Railroad Avenue are similar in size and form to one another. Each is two-stories high, single-pile plan, either two or three bays wide, capped with a side-gable roof, above which is one or two center-interior brick chimneys. The roofs are covered with asphalt shingles and each house stands on a random-rubble stone foundation. The dwellings are either clad with asbestos shingles, wood shingles, or aluminum siding. Each house includes features such as 6/6 wood-sash windows, wood soffit, single-leaf entry, overhanging eaves, and shed-roof porches and porticos. Lined adjacent to one another, none of these houses have driveways associated with them.

The side-gable roof house form previously described is common throughout the Lutherville African American survey district. Examples are exhibited at 1432 Bellona Avenue the Church Rectory (BA-342), 1426 through 1434 Railroad Avenue. One variation to the form is the addition of a half-story with a steep center cross gable on the facade. The center gables are pierced with small double-hung windows. Examples of this form are located at 617 and 619 Seminary Avenue.

Two circa 1910 houses at the southern end of School Lane are two-stories high, two-bays wide, and are covered with a front-gable roof. Both have center-interior brick chimneys rising above their asphalt-shingle roofs. One house retains the original 2/2 wood-sash windows whereas the second has 1/1 replacement windows. Both dwellings are augmented with shed-roof porches. Another example of this front-gable-roof form is located at 1421 Bellona Avenue.

One of the earliest houses in the community is located at 1419 Bellona Avenue. This house stands on a random-rubble stone foundation, and rises one-and-a-half stories in height. The first story on the façade measures five bays wide with two single-leaf entries. The house is capped with a cross-gable roof sheathed with asphalt shingles. A two-story addition has been added to the north elevation of the original block. Rising above the roof is one center-interior corbelled brick chimney. Coving four bays is a one-story shed-roof porch supported with Tuscan columns. The dwelling is re-clad and the original windows and doors have been replaced.

Two multiple-family dwellings in the Lutherville survey district are sited at 200 and 202 Lincoln Avenue. Both are two stories high, rest on random-rubble stone foundations, and have two separate entries on the façade. The house at 200 Lincoln Avenue features a sloping roof and 202 Lincoln Avenue is covered with a front-gable roof. The latter is four bays wide and interestingly features two interior brick chimneys.

One bungalow dwelling, 517 Seminary Avenue, is the only one-story dwelling amongst the western area in the Lutherville survey district. Constructed circa 1920, this bungalow is capped with a gable-on-hipped roof sheathed with asphalt shingles. Across the full width of the façade is a half-hipped roof porch supported with Tuscan columns. The foundation was not visible at the time of the survey.

The figurative and physical monument of the African American community in Lutherville is the Edgewood Methodist Episcopal Church (BA-300). Sited on a slight hill, this large wood-frame church faces south and is detailed in a Gothic Revival style. Two stories high, this church features a rectangular footprint augmented with a bell-tower on the east elevation. Raised on an ashlar stone foundation, the main block is covered with a front-gable roof, measures three bays across, and is re-clad with asbestos shingles. Entry into the nave is through the double-leaf entrance in the bell-tower. Entry into the first story (basement) is through a centered single-leaf door on the façade. Piercing the first story are two 2/2 wood-sash windows. The prevalent detail of the main block is the center triple lancet window on the façade. Each of the three pointed arch windows contains a 2/2 stained-glass wood-sash window. Flanking this large centerpiece are two 2/2 pointed-arch windows with stained glass. Illuminating the entrance in the bell-tower is a 6-light lancet transom with stained glass. Detailed with wood-louvered pointed-arch openings, the bell-tower is topped with a pyramidal roof and a pinnacle and features posts at the corners mimicking the roof shape and details. Other features of the Edgewood M.E. Church include the overhanging eaves, exposed roof rafters, and molded window surrounds. The cornerstone reads Edgewood M.E. Church, Built 1870, Rebuilt 1908.

Built circa 1909, the Lutherville School, School number 24, (BA-2565) on School Lane is one of the earliest African American two-room schoolhouse remaining in Baltimore County. The earliest one-room African American schoolhouse appears to be the Piney Grove school built circa 1850 (BA-1177). School number 24 is constructed of wood-frame and is clad with weatherboard siding. Raised on a random-rubble stone foundation this building features a projecting cross-gable plan. The three-bay-wide projecting gable contains the center entry flanked by two 4/4 wood-sash windows on the ends. The double-leaf replacement doors are illuminated with a two-light transom. The rear section is pierced with two 4/4 wood-sash windows and features two-exterior-end corbelled brick chimneys. The roof is re-clad with asphalt shingles and features slightly overhanging eaves.

The Lutherville African American Survey District is located in the Eighth District of Baltimore County. The Eighth District is bounded on the north by the Fifth and Seventh Districts, on the east by the Ninth and Tenth, on the south by the Ninth and Third, and on the west by the Fourth and Fifth Districts. It is the third largest district of the county covering over 62 square miles. In 1881, it had a population of approximately 6000, which was down over a thousand from a decade prior. During this period, its primary source of income was mining for iron ore, marble, and limestone. It also maintained numerous mills grist and saw mills in addition to paper factories.(1)

The Sidney Atlas from 1850 depicts the Susquehanna Railroad to the east of Towsontown. The area now considered Lutherville originally consisted of York Road and Bellona Avenue in 1850. York Road originated in Towsontown and traveled northeast through Baltimore County. Bellona Avenue began in Govanstown a small community south of Towsontown. Govanstown is now a neighborhood embraced by Baltimore City. Above Lutherville the railroad parallels York Road, which extends from the center of Towsontown to the northwest. Shown on the 1850 atlas are four residences depicted north of Bellona Avenue in the Lutherville area. The owners of these properties are Miss Ford, Oriscum, J. Burton, and J. Price.(2)

Lutherville was a planned village developed by the ministers of the Lutheran Church. The founders of the Lutheran Church, including Reverend Dr. Morris, purchased the Brice Estate located just west of the Susquehanna Railroad and developed it into lots to be sold. The proceeds made from the real estate went towards the construction of the female seminary. Opening in 1854, the seminary's existence in Lutherville became an attraction for the area as a wealthy suburban village. In 1868, Lutherville became the first incorporated town in Baltimore County.(3)

By 1877, according to the Hopkins Atlas Lutherville has developed as a commercial and residential center. It received the name Lutherville and approximately twelve streets were developed and platted by this time. Approximately fifty buildings are depicted on the 1877 atlas within the village of Lutherville. One institution exhibited on the 1877 atlas is the female seminary located above Lincoln Avenue on what is now called Seminary Avenue.(4)

Scharf, the author of History of Baltimore City and County, wrote in 1881 the population of Lutherville totaled 382 inhabitants.(5) This small town grew nearly fifty percent in the next sixteen years reaching a total of 700 residents. One of the local residents at this time, Adams, owned his own business and was able to purchase homes for each of his children, three of which still stand on Railroad Avenue.

Edgewood United Methodist Church built their first church in 1870 on land that was donated by George I. Richardson. The piece of property he donated was on the edge of a wooded area for which became the name of the church, Edgewood. Destroyed in the late 19th century, the church was rebuilt in the late Gothic Revival style and opened in 1908.(6)

The two-room schoolhouse on School Lane, School number 24 (BA-2565), was built in 1908 and opened in 1909. Prior to the construction of this school building, classes were held in a rented room in the Lutherville Colored Odd Fellows Hall on Bellona Avenue. Students that attended the Lutherville School came from many of the surrounding towns including Cockeysville, Beaver Dam, Texas, Riderwood, Ruxton, Brightside, and Bare Hills. (7) Grades one through three were in one room and four through seven in the larger room. Students who wished to continue their education past the seventh grade had to attend high school in Baltimore City, as there were not any African American high schools in Baltimore County until 1939. School number 24 was closed in early 1950's due to desegregation. Afterwards, the African American children of Lutherville attended Carver School in Towson. (8) In 1994, Arthur and Helen Chapman purchased the property and converted it into a museum. (9).

According to the 1915 Bromley Atlas all development of Lutherville had occurred north of Bellona Avenue to the edge of the Susquehanna Railroad. Much of the area directly south of Bellona Avenue still functioned as large and small farms. West of Francke Avenue south of Morris Avenue is Dr. Morris's Estate. East of Francke Avenue and along Morris Avenue on the north side is the H. Davis House. The house and a large stable stand on a large lot bounded to the east by Lutherville Road, to the south is Morris Avenue, to the west is the property of J.C. Beck. North of the Davis property are six lots; three lots contain the Mrs. J.G. Cockey Estate, one lot is owned by I. Fritz, and one lot has the F. Whitcraft House. The sixth lot is the corner lot bounded by Lutherville Road, Division Avenue, and Melancthon Avenue. On this property is the public school house. By 1915, the female seminary on Seminary Avenue was renamed as the Maryland College For Women. (10)

The 1960 census records 250 African Americans residing in Lutherville. A total of fifty five households accommodated these residents. Only 35 to 40 percent of the households were owned by their African American residents. A high ninety percent of the dwellings were substandard quality. The rental properties lived in by the African American residents were rented for approximately 22 to 40 dollars a month. (11)

The National Register Historic District boundaries for Lutherville include the Edgewood U.M. Church and Rectory as well as the five dwellings along Railroad Avenue. (12) Today, the area, upper Bellona, where Edgewood U.M. Church is located is referred to as Up on the Hill. Lower Bellona, which includes Lincoln Avenue, is termed Down the Back Road. The western section of this survey district, particularly Railroad Avenue, is termed as Cross the Tracks.
